

A large, light blue thought bubble with a black outline. Inside the bubble, the text "I think it is clear that the First Amendment does not entirely preclude liability for the intentional infliction of emotional distress by means of speech" is written in a black, sans-serif font. Three smaller, empty thought bubbles are positioned above the main bubble's top-left corner.

I think it is clear that the First Amendment does not entirely preclude liability for the intentional infliction of emotional distress by means of speech
