PARTICIPATION: Visit www.fantasylaw.org to learn more about FantasyLaw and download either (a) the rules (which you must follow) and forms (which you must complete and deliver) necessary to establish a FantasyLaw League or (b) the form necessary to request a drop/add or trade. Registration of a Team in a Green Bag FantasyLaw League entitles the Owner of that Team to some impossible-to-predict-or-promise combination of the joys and sorrows of participation in the League of which that Team is a part, and nothing more. Anything else the Green Bag may produce will take the form of gifts that we may or may not bestow on some Leagues or Owners (e.g., a Blackmun Trophy) or products you may purchase separately (e.g., a subscription to the Green Bag, which may from time to time contain a FantasyLaw supplement, or Judge Dave and the Rainbow People).

PARTICIPANTS: We do not want to know who the Owners of FantasyLaw Teams are, and we will ignore all efforts to corrupt our useful ignorance. For purposes of FantasyLaw, we only need to know the identity and contact information for your League’s Commissioner, and the names of the League and the Teams in it. We will communicate only with the League Commissioner about the business of a League or any of its Teams. Anyone other than a Commissioner who attempts to communicate with us about a League or any Team or Owner in that League will be ignored. So, if you are one of those for whom fantasy sports are of deep importance, you should make sure that your Commissioner has made testamentary arrangements for the passing-along of his or her responsibilities as Commissioner.

FANTASYLAW COMMENTARY

FANTASYLAW 2009

THE SEASON, THE STARS, AND THE STATISTICS

The Editors

A few weeks ago we wrapped up the first season of FantasyLaw, which was held during the first session of the 111th Congress of the United States. What follows below is a summary of the statistical performances of each member of Congress during that season, plus comments on a few highlights. We would like to think that this report will prove useful not only to people who are trying to win in FantasyLaw in 2010, but also to people who are trying to understand the behavior of legislators and the worlds in which they work. More realistically, perhaps, we hope that as ever-more-complete-and-comprehensive sequels to this report follow in the years to come, the resulting pile of information will eventually reach some kind of critical mass. Then, students of Congress will be able to find some useful insights into the ways and means of our national legislature and the people who work in it.

The FantasyLaw editors who contributed to this report are Brendan Coffman, Joshua Cumby, Ross E. Davies, Lauren Girardot, Emily Christine Kendall, Daniel Klionsky, Alex Mitchell, Sarah Nash, and Brian Rock.

THE SEASON

Our season began on July 6, 2009 (long after the 111th Congress convened on January 6), and ended on November 1, 2009 (long before Congress adjourned on December 24). The short season was really a shakedown cruise in which the only Team Owners were friends of the Green Bag who agreed to form Leagues in order to help us work out kinks in the game. They did a good job, we made some fixes, and now we think we have both a viable design for the game itself and a functional backroom operation to support it. And so we have opened up FantasyLaw just a bit to the public for 2010. We are looking forward to an interesting season this year, and an even bigger and better one in 2011.

THE STARS

The last gasp of the 2009 season was the first annual FantasyLaw Awards Ceremony, which we held on January 12, 2010 at the George Mason University School of Law. Sarah Nash presided, and opened the event by welcoming the audience and recognizing her fellow FantasyLaw editors in attendance (Brendan Coffman, Alex Mitchell, and Joshua Cumby) and absent (Lauren Girardot, Emily Christine Kendall, Daniel Kliensky, and Brian Rock). Cumby then delivered a short speech, which went something like this:

In Federalist No. 64, John Jay remarked on the motivations of members of the United States Senate: “With respect to their responsibility, it is difficult to conceive how it could be increased. Every consideration that can influence the human mind, such as honor, oaths, reputations, conscience, the love of country, and family affections and attachments, afford security for their fidelity.”

To this list we can now add the enticement of former and future glory on the fields of FantasyLaw, “[t]he fantasy sport where the players are lawmakers.”

Welcome, everyone, to the First Annual FantasyLaw Awards Ceremony. Just over a year ago, Green Bag Editor-in-Chief Ross E. Davies gathered a rag-tag group of erstwhile but eager law students in his office, and together they embarked on a journey whose ultimate destination was (and is) only faintly discernible. They knew that playing a fantasy-style sport with Federal legislators was a great idea. They also knew that the sport's practical and academic applications were, well, limitless. And, like all other Green Bag projects, they knew FantasyLaw would be both purposeful and fun.

FantasyLaw 2009: Season, Stars, Stats

As the contours of the project began taking shape during "beta-testing," all of the editors' expectations in these and so many other regards were met and exceeded. To keep tabs on the U.S. Congress, FantasyLaw editors "enacted" an alphabet soup of scoring measures that rivals anything seen during (or since) the New Deal. Some of the first scoring categories are already timeless – bills introduced, reported, and passed, appearances in major publications and the mass media – while others had to be left behind or safely stored for revival in future seasons. (No, they're not telling.) Once a working system was in place, it was time to take the show on the road (or at least the information superhighway). The 2009 Season began on Opening Day, July 6, 2009, and culminates today in our first FantasyLaw Awards Ceremony. The work was hard but the tears were few, and thanks goes out to all of those who so valiantly volunteered to play during FantasyLaw's Inaugural Season. The Editors hope you had fun (they certainly did). They also hope that the literature FantasyLaw will continue to inspire and the faithfully collected data that is its lifeblood will be useful to players past, present, and future, as well as wonks, la-z-boy legislators, and all others who have an interest in the inner workings of the ceaselessly fascinating democratic institution that is the United States Congress. After all, as Yogi Berra famously intoned, "You can observe a lot just by watching." Thank you.

Coffman then presented Blackmun Trophies¹ to the champions of the four Leagues participating in the 2009 FantasyLaw season:

- In the Galloping Gophers League: Snack Cakes, with a season score of 683.5.
- In the Justice League: The Voting Elvii, with a score of 586.
- In the Pro Se League: The Philly Busters, with a score of 621.
- In the Stimulus Spending League: Speech or Debate Claws, with a score of 583.5. (The Stormin' Normans were co-champions.)²

² For details on FantasyLaw scoring, see Daniel Klionsky, Scoring Summary, 12 GREEN BAG 2D 487 (2009), and Scoring System, available at www.fantasylaw.org.

The Editors

FantasyLaw editors Brendan Coffman and Sarah Nash, Stormin' Normans owner Allison Hayward of the Stimulus Spending League (with her Blackmun Trophy), and editors Joshua Cumby and Alex Mitchell at the FantasyLaw Awards Ceremony held January 12 to honor league champions and MVPs for the 2009 season.

Blackmun Trophies were also presented to the 2009 FantasyLaw MVP Award winners:

- In the House of Representatives: Nancy Pelosi (D-CA), with 2961.35 average points per week. Barney Frank (D-MA) came in second with 2862.
- In the Senate: John McCain (R-AZ), with 689 average points per week. Patrick Leahy came in second with 658.147.³

Congratulations to all on a successful and enjoyable first season.

³ For details on the calculation of MVP status, see Brian Rock, The Making of My FantasyLaw MVP, 12 GREEN BAG 2D 489 (2009), and Brian Rock, Grading MVP, 13 GREEN BAG 2D (2010) (forthcoming), available at www.fantasylaw.org.

THE STATS

Now to the statistics. The tables on the following pages present the basic statistical record of each person who served in the Senate or the House of Representatives during the first session of the 111th Congress, as measured by the eleven FantasyLaw measures of legislative performance. A key to “The Eleven Measures of FantasyLaw Performance” and their acronyms is below. The names are pretty much self-explanatory, but the details of our methods for gathering the data and our standards for what does and does not count in each category are not. A complete explanation is available in our “Scoring System” pamphlet, which is available at the “Rules, tools, and forms” link on the FantasyLaw website.⁴

The Eleven FantasyLaw Measures of Performance

Acronym Category

SBI	Sponsorship of Bills Introduced
SBR	Sponsorship of Bills Reported
SBH	Sponsorship or Co-sponsorship of Bills Passing the House
SBS	Sponsorship or Co-sponsorship of Bills Passing the Senate
SBE	Sponsorship of Bills Enacted
ACR	Appearances in Congressional Record
ADN	Appearances in 5 Major Daily Newspapers
AHP	Appearances in 4 Major Hill Publications
ATS	Appearances on 5 Major Sunday Morning Talk Shows
ACC	Appearances on The Daily Show and The Colbert Report
PRI	Press Releases Issued

When studying these statistics, please bear in mind that the FantasyLaw season began on July 6 and ended on November 1, 2009, and thus covered less than one half of the first session of the 111th Congress, which worked off and on from January 6 to December 24, 2009. As a result, our numbers provide only a partial picture of the work of each federal legislator. This means, for example, that some legislators (those who were especially active during the summer and early autumn) might appear to have been more engaged than they really were over the course of the entire year, while others (those who might have been especially active early and late in the session) might appear to be less engaged. For example, Senator Jim Bunning's line in our report seems to show that his entire involvement in the legislative process during 2009 consisted of sponsorship or co-sponsorship of a single bill that was not enacted, and a single appearance in the Congressional Record. But it may be that he was active in other legislative work before July 6 and after November 1. So, make of these statistics what you will, but do not make more of them than what they are.⁵

⁴ Rules, tools, and forms, www.fantasylaw.org; see also Ross E. Davies, Opening Day, 12 GREEN BAG 2D 349 (2009).

The Editors
