

To the Bag

NOW WE'RE STUCK

To the Bag:

I have just renewed my subscription to your journal. We now have a binding contract that commits you to produce at least three more years of GB2d and to deliver the same to me. Granted, you have not committed to the contents of the journal or to the quality of the journal or – clever folks – the frequency of publication. But three years is three years even if it takes four years. Based on our course of dealing, I believe you are also committed to having the publication arrive in one piece, bound together in a way that causes the pages to stick to each other. That will be our little contract of adhesive.

Yours faithfully,
Paul Kiernan
